FOREWORD

"I used to have a hard time reading because I did not have a book. Since I got a storybook from Save the Children, I can read fluently. Now, I have become a reading buddy for children around."

That is a story from Angki, a child from Nusa Tenggara Timur province in Indonesia, who participated in our education program. Angki was one of the 451,757 children that we reached through our programs in 2022. We believe that fulfilling the rights of children requires an understanding of the urgent needs of children and existing capacity of the community, parents and schools to co-create a solution together. Whether making small steps or tremendous changes for one child like Anggi* or for one hundred children, every effort is meaningful for their future. Each change we make for children has its own story, struggles and challenges, and ultimately we hope to make an impact to their lives.

2022 was a particularly challenging year for children, coming out of the pandemic, whether in terms of lost learning, lost family livelihoods, loss of access to health coverage and vaccination facilities and ultimately, loss of their rights as children to grow, learn and be protected. During the difficult times of the COVID-19 pandemic, we have stayed true to our mission, and together with our partners, donors, and supporters, as well as with the Government of Indonesia, we have been working to address the widening gaps, inequality and discrimination to ensure that every child has the best possible opportunity to grow up healthy, educated, and safe.

I am also proud to say that Save the Children Indonesia, since 2021 has been committed to increasingly shifting 'power' to local actors, including partners and children & youth, providing funding, capacity building, tools, access, as well as sharing the experience and expertise to voice out their rights and needs. We have set our roadmap and framework using the 7 dimensions of localisation to systematically track the progress of our commitment towards our localisation agenda.

By 2030, we hope to execute a majority of our programs through local partners and ensuring that children are an integral part of all of our activities and governance. We believe this approach is crucial for Save the Children to retain its legitimacy and relevance in the changing context of the humanitarian and development space, and to become a catalyst to the civic society to accelerate our overall mission to create and amplify impact for children across the country. This would not have been possible without the collaborative efforts and support from all of our partners and donors.

As our founder Eglantyne Jebb said that the work to fulfil the children's rights is difficult. But we will continue to work towards our mission. We are grateful for the trust and support of our partners and donors, and we look forward to continuing our work together in the years to come so we can help children like Anggi* to fulfil their dreams and potential.

"Save the Children is often told that its aims are impossible – that there has always been child suffering and there always will be. We know. It is impossible only if we make it so. It's impossible only if we refuse to attempt it." (Eglantyne Jebb)

OUR STORY

History

Our story begins in 1919, when Eglantyne Jebb launches the Save the Children Fund in London in the wake of World War I – in the same era when 1918 influenza pandemic occurs. Jebb's action soon becomes the first global movement for children. An outspoken champion for children, Jebb drafts the historic Declaration of the Rights of the Child, adopted by the League of Nations in 1924. The drafts then adopted by UN in 1989 as the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child. It becomes the most universally accepted human rights treaty in history.

In Indonesia, Save the Children has been operating since 1976. In 2004, we are among the first to respond to the Asian Tsunami centered in Aceh. This five-year response was one of the largest in our history.

In 2014, Save the Children in Indonesia began the transition to become a local entity and also an associate member of Save the Children's global movement. In 2021, Yayasan Sayangi Tunas Cilik, as a local entity of Save the Children Indonesia, officially changed its name to Yayasan Save the Children Indonesia. This effort is a strategic step for the organization to broaden and sustain the benefits of Save the Children for children in Indonesia.

To regain lost learning for the most marginalized children and children with disability, through safe, continued, and inclusive high quality education system.

To strengthen government child protection systems at all levels, ensuring children are inclusively protected from different forms of violence, exploitation, neglect, and early & forced child marriage.

To build the resilience of children and communities to address the negative effects of climate change, and disaster risks on their lives, through child-sensitive, social protection.

To enhance children and youth's right to participation in Government decision making processes on issues that affect them.

Our Works for Strategic Goal I

HEALTHY START IN LIFE

Overview

Indonesia has made progress in improving child health in recent years. In 2021, the total number of children under-5 deaths decreased from 28.158 deaths in 2020 to 27.566, according to the Mother and Children's Nutrition and Health Directorate of the Ministry of Health. The prevalence of stunting, which is a major issue in children's health across Indonesia, has also shown a decreasing trend since 2019, dropping from 27,7% to 21,6% in 2022.

The Ministry of Health aims to reduce it to at least 14% by 2024. However, as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic and related outstanding issues, many health problems still exist in the community that strongly influence children's health, such as the triple burden of diseases. This includes the emergence of new and re-emerging infectious diseases like COVID-19, the challenges of managing communicable diseases, and the increasing prevalence of non-communicable diseases.

Our Focus

Save the Children's objective within Healthy Start in Life goal is to prevent newborn deaths and stunting through holistic and integrated support for maternal health and nurturing early child development in the first 1.000 days of life. We aim to reduce incidence of preventable diseases and deaths among children under 5; reduce preventable maternal & newborn deaths; reduce prevalence of malnutrition (underweight, wasting, stunting) among children under 2; and improve reproductive health & nutrition among pregnant women/ girls and adolescent girls.

Achievement Highlights

Save the Children Indonesia, together with partners, has positively impacted 595.165 people through programs related to this goal. These programs were implemented in Jakarta, Bali, West Java, Central Java, Yogyakarta, South Sulawesi, East Nusa Tenggara, West Nusa Tenggara, Central Sulawesi, West Sumatera, and West Kalimantan.

Essential Health Service for Child Health & Nutrition

- 5.145 community healthworkers have been trained on prevention and treatment of childhood illnesses and malnutrition using evidence-based approaches.
- 461.108 children and adults were reached through the evidence-based maternal, newborn, and child health & nutrition (MNCHN) and adolescent sexual & reproductive health (ASRH) programs.
- 154.363 children and adults were supported through the rollout of a large-scale, culturally appropriate health and nutrition social behavior change program.

Accountable Institution

We have supported 17 positive changes in government policies, laws, public investment, systems, and services. These changes include initiatives by our partners as well as children themselves to ensure that children’s right to health and nutrition are met.

- Policy changes have been made at the provincial, district, and village levels in West Java, South Sulawesi, and East Nusa Tenggara. These policies include the development of regulations on Weekly Iron Folic Acid consumption for school aged children, behavioural change communication strategy, audit of Maternal Perinatal regulations, Posyandu revitalizations, and integrated Posyandu services.

- BISA (Better Investment for Stunting Alleviation) project has successfully advocated for District Offices in Timor Tengah Utara, East Nusa Tenggara, to develop a communication strategy on stunting alleviation and District Head decreed for a 5-year implementation period. We have also achieved success in advocating for village funds allocation for stunting alleviations in 6 villages in West Bandung and Timor Tengah Utara districts.

- At the national level, we are consistently advocating for the National Action Plan for Pneumonia and Diarrhoea (NAPPD), and we have also been part of the national technical working group.

BETTER INVESTMENT FOR STUNTING ALLEVIATION

We implement a health and nutrition program in West Java and East Nusa Tenggara (NTT) in 2019- 2024 to support the Indonesian government in reducing stunting rates. One way is through educational activities for maternal and caregivers using the Emo-Demo approach.

“(I like the session) about nutritional balance where we stacked those blocks because it’s just so fun. Even if we’re already old, we play games. And, what’s more, it took place during (child) immunizations,” said Elis, a participant mother in West Bandung.

WATER FOR SUMBA

Together with people in West Sumba, we constructed a water channel installation closer to the villagers’ homes and basic facility buildings, including healthcare facilities. Previously, the community had to fetch water on foot from relatively faraway sources.

“Now, my child is comfortable. She can have a clean body, always take a bath, and eat well because the food is cooked (with clean water),” said Ranti, a mother who uses the water for their daily household needs and for gardening.

SAFE BACK TO SCHOOL & LEARNING

Overview

More than 60 million children in Indonesia have had their education disrupted by COVID-19 and natural disasters. The pandemic has had an alarming impact on children's learning, particularly for the most vulnerable students. This crisis is the biggest threat to child rights and gender equality.

During 2022, Save the Children and partners have provided various initiatives to close the gap and ensure the involvement of teachers, parents, communities, and government in ensuring children could keep learning.

Our Focus

Save the Children's objective within Safe Back to School and Learning goal is to regain lost learning for the most marginalized children, including those with disabilities, through safe, continued, and inclusive high quality education system.

We aim to ensure and support equal access and quality education for affected children with discrimination and inequality; to strengthen inclusive and safe education system nationwide; to enhance education system with alternative learning options in crisis context, including natural disaster.

LEARNING RECOVERY

Laurensia Luruk is one of the reading camp facilitators in East Nusa Tenggara whom we assist through the Learning Recovery Project. We promote alternative learning method, provide stories books, and involve volunteers like Laurensia to support teachers in fulfilling the gaps of learning loss caused by the pandemic. She told us that they are happy for the new knowledge of proper strategy for children in reading camps.

"We do have module consists of strategies, ways and tips to facilitate children properly. Starting with playing, singing, telling stories, and then ask them for their understanding on stories, After that, we do 'make and take' activity before finally make journals to bring home," said Laurensia.

WE SEE EQUAL

Alvin, a grade 9 junior high school student, is one of our agents of change in the We See Equal Project. This program promotes gender equality for girls and boys, raise awareness of the importance of understanding and access to many opportunities, and help to overcome the problems due to negative gender stereotypes.

Now Alvin is not only participating in extracurricular and student council, but is also more sensitive in responding to bullying around him. He remembered that he was also a bully when in primary school. "When I was in 6th grade, I felt like I'm the tallest one. At that time, there really wasn't any information about bullying, I thought it was normal."

LIVE FREE FROM VIOLENCE

Overview

Save the Children believe that violence against children is unacceptable. Child abuse in Indonesia is increasing, According to SIMFONI - national database under Ministry of Women Empowerment and Child Protection, violence against children cases recorded in 2020 was 12.412, in 2021 was 15.914, and in 2022 was 17.641 cases. Child labor in agriculture is also a problem, with over 985,000 children working in harmful conditions. Growing up with violence, and the threat of violence, can lead to life-long physical, emotional and mental health problems.

Save the Children Indonesia is working in collaboration with the government and our partners to keep children free from violence through our various child protection programs. These programs emphasize the provision of appropriate care, protection from violence against children, prevention of child labor, strengthening the child protection system, and ensuring child protection in emergencies. In addition to implementing programs, including advocacy work at the sub-national level, we also focus on advocacy work at the national level, enabling us to disseminate knowledge and effective practices to support children on a larger scale.

Our Focus

Save the Children's objective within Live Free from Violence goal is to strengthen child protection systems of the government at all levels, ensuring children are inclusively protected from different forms of violence, exploitation, neglect, and early or forced child marriage.

CHILD PROTECTION IN AGRICULTURE

“It’s because of the long distance and traveling on foot. It’s a transport problem. No one accompanies me to school,” said AN*.

AN (16), the son of a cocoa farmer in Bone District, had dropped out of school due to distance and transportation access problems. The Community-Based Integrated Child Protection Group (PATBM) helped AN to return to school through the high school equivalency program (Kejar Paket).

The establishment of the monitoring and remediation system of child labour cases, as well as other children’s rights issues, is part of our child protection program in the agriculture community and surrounding communities.

CHILD PROTECTION IN AGRICULTURE

The Community-based Child Protection group of Mariorilau village in Soppeng District has identified a long-standing local practice known as Siko Nyameng. Each household sets aside a handful of rice before cooking, which is then collected and used as a source of social funds or assistance for the village. The group figured out that Siko Nyameng could also be carried out to help children.

“We have asked the village head’s approval for this program, and he has given the green light. It is on our agenda that a Village Regulation is made so that we won’t be considered charging illegal fees to the community,” said Hesniati.

Our Works for Strategic Goal IV

SAFETY NETS & RESILIENT FAMILIES

Overview

Indonesia is highly prone to disasters, with 2,000-5,000 disaster events annually in recent years. At least 30% of total residents, including children and people with disabilities, are exposed by the multiple hazards. However, limited access to information and knowledge increase vulnerability to communities and children. In fact, 50% of at-risk children are unaware they live in disaster-prone areas, hence children often make up one-third of the affected population in disaster events.

Meanwhile, Indonesia still faces large disparities in regional economic opportunities, despite the economic growth it had achieved prior to the COVID-19 pandemic, leading to higher poverty rates in areas like Eastern Indonesia and rural regions. Children from impoverished families face increased risk of death before the age of five, malnutrition, dropout, hazardous work, child marriage, and early childbirth. The poorest children are most vulnerable to being left behind and deprived of their rights to survival, learning, and protection from violence.

We collaborate with duty bearers, communities, children's entities, schools, community-based organizations, and privates to build disaster and climate resilience for children and communities. We strengthen entities to be able to tackle uncertainty of hazards and risks, enhance adaptive capacity to solve root cause of vulnerability, and provide humanitarian services during disaster in Indonesia, with children at the core.

We work to break the cycle of poverty and ensure families are able to provide for their children. We help save lives and support children's health, education and protection, using cash and voucher assistance. We help strengthen livelihoods and build household and community resilience. We work with governments on policies and programs that help protect children from the lifelong effects of poverty. We also work with vulnerable youth, offering training in skills they can use to earn a living and manage their finances.

Our Focus

Save the Children's objective within Safety Nets and Resilient Families goal is to build the resilience of children and communities to address the negative effects of climate change and disaster risks on their lives through child-sensitive, social protection.

We focus on climate resilience programming, including policy advocacy, research, and risk communication, and some approaches to address child poverty i.e. food security and livelihood (FSL), cash and voucher assistance (CVA), child-sensitive social protection (CSSP), and adolescent skills for successful transitions (ASST).

Achievement Highlights

Save the Children Indonesia, together with partners, has brought positive impacts to 38.296 people through programs related to this goal. We have been implemented programs in Lampung, West Sumatra, West Java, Yogyakarta, East Java, Bali, West Kalimantan, South Sulawesi, Central Sulawesi, West Nusa Tenggara, and East Nusa Tenggara provinces.

Research

Our Works for Strategic Goal V

CHILD RIGHTS GOVERNANCE & GENDER EQUALITY

Overview

COVID-19 is a global pandemic that threatens children's rights in countries around the world and exposes them to potential disruption to their education, healthcare, protection and wellbeing, including their voices to be heard. Due to school closures, children and young people were unable to come together in physical spaces, massively affecting their communication between themselves and with communities.

Through our programs, Save the Children and partners keep influencing the state to establish the policies and systems that effectively implement the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child (UNCRC) as necessary to make child rights a reality, and addresses the systemic, underlying and/or structural aspects that enable or hinder children's rights.

Child-led data collection and child-led advocacy have been implemented in order to strengthen the influence from children to make the government accountable. Our programs also ensure better targeting, equal, and inclusive access to information and services of social protection during the COVID-19 pandemic, including for children with disabilities, children from minority groups, and women.

Our Focus

Save the Children's objective within Child Rights Governance and Gender Equality goal is to enhance children and youth's right to participation in Government decision-making processes on issues that affect them. We have created a space for children to participate in public activities and to influence the decision making processes.

“As children, we have a lot of rights, one of them is the right to participation in development process,” said ML (16).

“The state has an obligation to protect children from violence,” said YL (17).

CHILD-LED INNOVATION

Inclusive Incubator for Young Changemakers or i2Change is a program initiated by Save the Children to support children aged 13-17 years in innovating and creating project of change. In 2022, i2Change was implemented in Sumba, East Nusa Tenggara, and involved 46 children in 14 groups.

PARTNERSHIPS & LOCALIZATION

Overview

We at Save the Children believe that by shifting greater capacity, funding, expertise, and access to national and local actors, this will contribute to greater reach, impact, and quality outcomes for children and their communities, and ultimately lead to greater fulfillment of their rights.

Save the Children Indonesia has a strong commitment to supporting local and national partners – including children themselves – in driving the sustainable realization of children’s rights. We advocate for partners’ direct access to resources and support significant scale-up of partners’ own delivery to maximize our collective impact for children. Our role becomes much more demand-driven and supportive to partners in our shared mission to improve children’s lives in Indonesia and worldwide.

In 2022, Save the Children Indonesia has initiated series of workshops, meetings, and consultations with internal, external, including with partners and children and youth, to thoroughly assess our current state of localization. In the assessment, we engaged with 21 local and national partners, children, and youth representatives, as well as our staff both in the field and in the management. We refer to the 7 Dimensions of Localisation framework (funding, partnership, capacity sharing, participation revolution, coordination mechanism, visibility, and policy influence) as the wide-angle lens in seeing where we at right now and where we desire to go. The results revealed that Save the Children Indonesia has already started, partially practicing throughout the 7 Dimensions, since 2020, and we have developed a 6-year (2022-2027) roadmap and desired future state for the localization initiative.

Achievements

One of the key significant achievements related to localization initiative in 2022 was the funding dimension, in which 25% of Save the Children Indonesia funding portfolio were allocated to local and national partners. However, there are still further expectations from local partners that, in addition to increased funding for programs, Save the Children Indonesia also needs to increase its funding allocation to partner’s organization development, non-program related capabilities and its governance.

Another significant achievement was the realization in the participation revolution dimension through meaningful children and youth participation by the establishment of CYAN (Children & Youth Advisory Network) structure in 9 different provinces across Indonesia and having its representatives advocating their rights speaking at local, national, and international forums.

In addition to above, the challenging situation due to the COVID-19 pandemic has triggered our best effort in contributing to the government’s responses, where Save the Children Indonesia has contributed to the efforts of COVID-19 vaccination to prevent and mitigate the spread of the virus to vulnerable groups, as part of a joint program in five provinces involving 329 national and local organizations, including disability organizations, community-based organizations, civil society organizations, and women and youth group organizations.

CHILD AND YOUTH PARTICIPATION

Shifting the Paradigm

It is not only about stating “child participation” as one of our strategic goals in our country strategic plan, but it is more about shifting the paradigm on how we really put children at the center of what we do. Putting children at the center of what we do is not only putting them as beneficiaries or our project, but it’s about empowering them to be able to claim their rights. So that whenever projects end, children are still able to be an active citizen to hold the duty bearers accountable and to demand accountability for the changes that should be made so all children can reach their full potential.

Therefore, Save the Children Indonesia in 2020 launched the Children and Youth Advisory Networks (CYAN), a network of children and young people aged 12-24 years old who are beneficiaries of Save the Children in Indonesia, actively engaged in advocating their rights and representing their regions through the selection processes by their peers. We aim to improve the accountability of Save the Children Indonesia in developing child and youth focused policies and programming by involving children and young people; and to improve the policy decision-making processes at national and sub-national level through meaningful children and youth participation.

Key Achievements of Child Participation Initiatives

Organizational Capacity

- By the end of 2022, CYAN has expanded its memberships by recruiting 125 children and young people as new members at sub-national level in 9 provinces (Jakarta, Lampung, East Java, West Java, Yogyakarta, South Sulawesi, Central Sulawesi, East Nusa Tenggara, and West Nusa Tenggara).

- CYAN members have been trained on gender equality, child/youth-led advocacy, climate action, and proposal and program development.
- CYAN has been involved in the Save the Children Indonesia country strategic planning processes by conducting children and youth consultations in their respective areas.

FINANCIAL SNAPSHOT

In our effort to support children, Save the Children Indonesia has received support from various parties in various forms, including funding. Save the Children Indonesia applies principles of transparent and accountable fund management. Every year, our financial report is audited by independent external auditors and publicly published.

Our income is made up of restricted income, which must be used only for the purpose specified by the donor, and unrestricted income, which is used for domestic program and organization development to invest in strategic initiatives and priorities and build capacity of our staff and partners to deliver and strengthen quality of Save the Children programs.

Unrestricted income is particularly important in a humanitarian crisis when we need to act quickly or when we are piloting innovative programs, to ensure we are agile enough to meet children's needs in a changing world. It is also vital to our ability to meet our strategic objectives, support long-term growth of the organization, and bring meaningful and lasting change for every last child.

In 2022, humanitarian grants comprised our largest portfolio, accounting for 29% of COVID-19 response program. The second-largest grant is from development programs in the health and nutrition thematic, accounting for 16% of our total portfolio. Meanwhile, our individual fundraising portfolio has decreased compared to last year as an impact of lower new donor acquisition.

FUNDRAISING

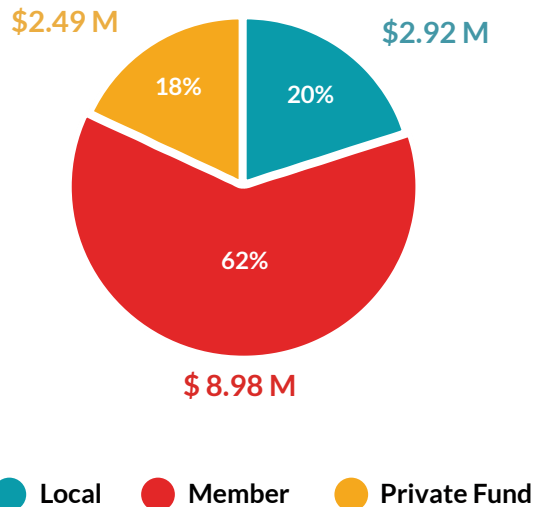

Overview

In 2022, as part of our continuing efforts to streamline and deliver more effective and efficient financial outcomes, the Board decided to merge the Fundraising, Retention, and Marketing and Communication (FRMC) Department and New Business Development (NBD) Department into one integrated team named Resouces Mobilization (ResMob) team and placed under the Program Impact Creation (PIC) Department. During this transition period, ResMob's main objective was to accelerate our impact and embed new ways of working so we can work together as one team and ensure the effectiveness and efficiency of our fundraising effort.

In addition, the plan was made to maximize the team to explore and sharpen existing income source channels in Institutional, Foundation, and Local Corporates, Digital and Individual Giving channel. With these changes, the ResMob team were forced to rapidly adapt and innovate, and valuable lessons were learned that will be carried forward into the coming year and beyond. Whilst the team were in transition period, the team was successfully able to deliver USD 14,335,747 of total income and able to grow 10% of our income portfolio by 10% from the previous year.

Fundraising Results

From the Domestic Income Source (Foundation, Corporate, Individual Giving), we were able to exceed the target and increase the contribution from 4% in 2021 to 20% of contribution of total income in 2022. The team successfully achieved one of the success criteria which was to diversify and strengthen Save the Children income source portfolio domestic market in Indonesia. This positive result provided optimism for us to continue the plan for strengthening our local market portfolio. Whilst Member Income source is still the biggest income source for Save the Children, and this year the team was able to contribute 62% of the total income portfolio.

In Private Fund Channel, specifically in the Individual Giving program, we delivered USD 1,707,758 in 2022. We were also able to grow our indirect cost recovery (ICR) income from USD 365,000 in 2021 to USD 521,000 in 2022. From our new business unit named CERDAS, 2022 was the first year for CERDAS to generate funding from both external and internal captive market and successfully delivered USD 252,000 to our total income portfolio.

FINANCIAL REPORT

Independent Auditor's Report

No. 00014/2.1096/AU.2/11/0597-1/1/V/2023

*Boards of Patrons, Supervisors, and Executives

We have audited the financial statements of Yayasan Save the Children Indonesia (the "Foundation"), which comprise the statement of financial position as at December 31, 2022, and the statement of activity, statement of changes in net assets, and statement of cash flows for the year then ended, and notes to the financial statements, including a summary of significant accounting policies.

In our opinion, the accompanying financial statements present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of the Foundation as at December 31, 2022, and its financial performance and its cash flows for the year then ended, in accordance with Indonesian Financial Accounting Standards for Non-Publicly Accountable Entities (SAK ETAP).

Basis for Opinion

We conducted our audit in accordance with Standards on Auditing established by the Indonesian Institute Certified Public Accountants. Our responsibilities under those standards are further described in the Auditor's Responsibilities for the Audit of the Financial Statements paragraph of our report. We are independent of the Foundation in accordance with the ethical requirements that are relevant to our audit of the financial statements in Indonesia, and we have fulfilled our other ethical responsibilities in accordance with these requirements. We believe that the audit evidence we have obtained is sufficient and appropriate to provide a basis for our opinion.

Responsibilities of Management and Those Charged with Governance for the Financial Statements

Management is responsible for the preparation and fair presentation of the financial statements in accordance with Indonesian Financial Accounting Standards for Non-Public Accountable Entities, and for such internal control as management determines is necessary to enable the preparation of financial statements that are free from material misstatement, whether due to fraud or error.

In preparing the financial statements, management is responsible for assessing the Foundation's ability to continue as a going concern, disclosing, as applicable, matters related to going concern, and using the going concern basis of accounting unless management either intends to liquidate the Foundation or cease operations, or have no realistic alternative but to do so.

Those charged with governance are responsible for overseeing the Foundation's financial reporting process.

Auditor's Responsibilities for the Audit of the Financial Statements

Our objectives are to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements as a whole are free from material misstatement, whether due to fraud or error, and to issue an auditor's report that includes our opinion.

Reasonable assurance is a high level of assurance but is not a guarantee that an audit conducted in accordance with Standards on Auditing will always detect a material misstatement when it exists. Misstatements can arise from fraud or error and are considered material if, individually or in the aggregate, they could reasonably be expected to influence the economic decisions of users taken on the basis of these financial statement.

As part of an audit in accordance with Standards of Auditing, we exercise professional judgment and maintain professional scepticism throughout the audit. We also:

- Identify and assess the risks of material misstatement of the financial statements, whether due to fraud or error, design, and perform audit procedures responsive to those risks, and obtain audit evidence that is sufficient and appropriate to provide a basis for our opinion. The risk of not detecting a material misstatement resulting from fraud is higher than for one resulting from error, as fraud may involve collusion, forgery, intentional omissions, misrepresentations, or the override of internal control.
- Obtain an understanding of internal control relevant to the audit in order to design audit procedures that are appropriate in the circumstances, but not for the purpose of expressing an opinion on the effectiveness of the Foundation's internal control.

- Evaluate the appropriateness of accounting policies used and the reasonableness of accounting estimates and related disclosures made by management.
- Conclude on the appropriateness of management's use of the going concern basis of accounting and, based on the audit evidence obtained, whether a material uncertainty exist related to events or conditions that may cast significant doubt on the Foundation's ability to continue as a going concern. If we conclude that a material uncertainty exists, we are required to draw attention to our auditor's report to the related disclosures in the financial statements or, if such disclosures are inadequate, to modify our opinion. Our conclusions are based on the audit evidence obtained up to the date of our auditor's report. However, future events or conditions may cause the Foundations to cease to continue as a going concern.
- Evaluate the overall presentation, structure, and content of the financial statements, including disclosures, and whether the financial statements represent the underlying transactions and events in a manner that achieves fair presentation.

We communicate with those charged with governance regarding, among other matters, the planned scope and timing of the audit and significant audit findings, including any significant deficiencies in internal control that we identify during our audit.

INSIDE OUR ORGANIZATION

With the pandemic beginning to slow down in 2022, Save the Children continued to work on one of its priorities, which is to shift to becoming a more agile organization and focusing on developing the skills and competencies of its people, creating a culture that is more aligned to Save the Children values, ensuring a lean structure, and having robust fit for purpose systems to support our organization transformation.

Our work on strengthening the organization culture was captured through series of campaigns on Save the Children values of accountability, collaboration, creativity, integrity, and ambition. This includes inviting staff to the sharing session on “Why Factor” to remind them why they work at Save the Children. As an organization, Save the Children is committed to listening to the opinions of staff for future improvement, whether through our Quarterly Newsletter, Bi-monthly Townhalls, and through an Employee Engagement Survey where staff have an opportunity to share their views and suggest ideas for improvement.

On employee capacity building, we are focusing on competencies that support organization strategic goals i.e., communications with impact for non-manager level staff, business acumen for manager and senior leaders, and continuing in-house training program to develop competencies of managing priorities.

On the recruitment process, the People and Organization Development (POD) Department conducted a Behavioral Event Interview (BEI), to ensure our staff talents fit with the organization culture and objectives. We also have a commitment to strengthen diversity, equity, and inclusion in our recruitment process and developed a policy to keep that commitment. As part of ensuring that Save the Children Indonesia is a safe employer, we also rolled out Prevention of Sexual Exploitation, Abuse, and Harassment (PSEAH) awareness training to our staff and partners in 2022.

By the end of 2022, Save the Children Indonesia employed 206 staff and 51% of our employees are female with an average age of 35.
